

Why Did Some Other Company Steal Your Name?

Without a Registered Trademark, others can use your business' name to capture your customers

After investing your time and money to brand the names or logos of your business, products, or services, why let someone else use them?

Filing a fictitious business name, or even establishing a corporation or LLC, provides most businesses with little legal protection against some other company from using the same (or deceptively similar names). The same holds true with the names of your featured products or services. Further, no business name registration protects your logo.

The only solid protection you have against infringement is to federally register a trademark (also known as a service mark) with the United States Patent and Trademark Office. While the final approval process may be slow, you'll have priority from the date we file your application.

OK, I want my name or logo to be protected, but how do I start?

During a free consultation with our experienced small business attorneys, we will ask you the right questions about your products and services, conduct a complimentary trademark search, and advise as to the likelihood of registration.

Bottom line... What does it cost?

We are one of the few law firms in the country that will publicize our legal fees...because we simply know they are less than nearly all others. They are:

Standard Legal Fee for

Trademark Registration:

$995 all inclusive flat fee, plus costs*

**Typical costs: filing fee with USPTO is $275 to $325. If you are not yet using your proposed Trademark in interstate commerce, additional fees and costs will apply when you actually do so after registration.*
