

What Causes Business Partners to Sue Each Other?

The lack of an attorney-drafted partnership agreement

When business partners clearly understand their responsibilities to each other, things go a lot smoother. “Clearly” means a written agreement. Do you have one?

Whenever two or more partners go into business together (either as active participants or as passive investors), it’s critical they have an up-front understanding of all material terms of the relationship. Without a written agreement, the most ethical businesspeople can easily have a misunderstanding of expectations.

We use the generic term “partner” to mean partners in a partnership, shareholders in a corporation, and members in a Limited Liability Company. Regardless of your business structure, partners simply get along better when they have a written document to refer to as their business relationship evolves.

OK, we need a partnership agreement, but how do we start?

During a free consultation with our experienced small business attorneys, we will ask you the right questions about your business, your expectations of your partners, and your ultimate objectives. From there, we can professionally draft an agreement representing any one or all of the partners in single or joint representation.

The Small Business Law Firm, P.C.

www.SmallBusinessLaw.Org

Toll Free 855-5-Biz-Law (855-524-9529)

This legal advertisement is for small business owners.

Our principal attorney, Scott Williams, invites you to call with questions.

When The Small Business Law Firm drafts our Partnership Agreement, what do we get?

- A full-service law firm with experienced business attorneys who answer your phone calls and provide solid legal advice every step of the way;
- Comprehensive questionnaire of leading partnership issues, including salaries, profits and losses, and buy-sell concerns;
- Unlimited correspondence between our firm and you during the process;
- A professionally drafted partnership agreement, by an experienced small business attorney who understands that “your business is not a Fortune 500 company”;
- Unlimited revisions with your attorney to ensure all clients are completely satisfied with the terms of the agreement.

Bottom line... What does it cost?

We are one of the few law firms in the country that will publicize our legal fees...because we simply know they are less than nearly all others. They are:

Standard Legal Fee for Partnership Agreement:

$895 all inclusive flat fee*

Additional Fee for More than 2 Partners:

$95 flat fee for each additional partner

For representation of a single client, or two clients with a joint client conflict of interest waiver.*

 All partners must agree to joint representation.*

Please call for a free, no-obligation consultation on any business legal matter.

The Small Business Law Firm, P.C.

www.SmallBusinessLaw.Org

Toll Free 855-5-Biz-Law (855-524-9529)

This legal advertisement is for small business owners.

Our principal attorney, Scott Williams, invites you to call with questions.

